Feasting On The Word: Year A: Pentecost And Season After Pentecost 1 (Propers 3-16) (Feasting On The Word)

Synopsis

With the twelve-volume series Feasting on the Word, Westminster John Knox Press offers one of the most extensive and well-respected resources for preaching on the market today. When complete, the twelve volumes will cover all of the Sundays in the three-year lectionary cycle, along with moveable occasions. The page layout is truly unique. For each lectionary text, preachers will find brief essays—one each on the exegetical, theological, pastoral, and homiletical challenges of the text. Each volume will also contain an index of biblical passages so that nonlectionary preachers may make use of its contents. The printed volumes for Ordinary Time include the complementary stream during Year A, the complementary stream during the first half of Year B, the semicontinuous stream during the second half of Year B, and the semicontinuous stream during Year C. Beginning with the season after Pentecost in Year C, the alternate lections for Ordinary Time not in the print volumes will be available online at feastingontheword.net.

Customer Reviews

"Wonderfully organized and intelligently shaped, these reflections on Scripture are sure to be a valuable aid for those in ministry." Stanley Hauerwas, Gilbert T. Rowe Professor of Theological Ethics, Duke University Divinity School
"David Bartlett and Barbara Brown Taylor are to be congratulated for creating a unique and remarkable commentary that stands head and shoulders above the rest." The Living Church
"The most ecumenical and comprehensive of the lectionary commentaries." Thomas G. Long, Bandy Professor of Preaching, Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Atlanta "A monumental contribution. These substantial and beautifully produced volumes address the reader with all the gravitas and grace that preaching deserves (and requires). Feasting on the Word will richly repay your investment." The Christian Century

David L. Bartlett is Professor of New Testament at Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Georgia. He is the author of What's Good about This News: Preaching the Gospel from Galatians and coeditor of the Westminster Bible Companion series. Barbara Brown Taylor is Harry R. Butman Professor of Religion and Philosophy at Piedmont College in Piedmont, Georgia and Adjunct Professor of Christian Spirituality at Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Georgia. She is the author of many books, including An Altar in the World. She is an at-large editor for The Christian Century and a sometime commentator on Georgia Public Radio.

Be forewarned: All of the Feasting on the Word (FOTW) commentaries are composed of short essays written by a wide variety of people, and it can often seem "throw together," with the essays sometimes relying on trite and theologically dubious advice (i.e. "Trust your spiritual heart to know the way. It is the only compass you need.") With that said, there are plenty of great authors who mention important points to reference in your sermons. However, I can no longer recommend buying this commentary. The quality is too inconsistent. Some essays make blatant mistakes that illustrate how hastily they were written, edited, and published. For example, for Year A's Trinity Sunday, the commentary thinks that the scripture is Genesis 1:1-2, 4a (just two and a half verses) as opposed to the actual text assigned by the Revised Common Lectionary (RCL), Genesis 1:1-2:4a (the entire "Hymn of Creation"). What's so embarrassing is that the author of the "Exegetical Perspective" actually assumes that FOTW's text selection is purposeful, and half of his essay dwells on why verse 3 is was left out by the RCL. Such mistakes speak to a rushed writing and editorial process, as if the essays were typed up in an afternoon by a seminary professor who was simply asked to produce something for the series but wasn't passionate about the text. I bought the entire set on Kindle, but sadly, I reference this commentary less and less, even as I've begun to use the Lectionary more. I'm now grateful that I didn't spend the money on the hardcovers. Just pull out your New Interpreter's Commentary and start from there. (That's pretty much what some of the essayists in this commentary are doing.)

I have been buying this series on Kindle for two reasons. Reason #1 - the font on the original books is too small Reason #2 - It takes up much less space The Kindle version, unlike the book version (which has side by side readings of the four) offers a single reading of each one. It is easy to mark up, take notes, and if I use my iPad for a screen shot, even lets me print out a bit of text I want to use. As a pastor I use this both in preparing sermons and in preparing to share in a group pastors Bible Study where we share the lectionary together. My only comment is that these use alternate texts for the second half of Year B and all of Year C. It would have been nice to have all texts available. But still, one of the best resources I have on hand.

Love these commentaries and kindle version shows well. Only problem is that the Year A,B,C and Volume number are near impossible to read on the cover view which makes finding which one you need quite the annoying task.

It's very helpful to have this excellent resource available as a download on my computer

Excellent resources and very well written. Thoughtful. I use it frequently

If you are new to the Revised Common Lectionary or have been using it for years, this book, and its companion volumes, will prove to be an invaluable tool for you for many years. It explores each reading for every Sunday of the Liturgical year from four perspectives: theological, pastoral, exegetical and homiletical and in doing so provides a wealth of information for the preparation of liturgies and sermons that reflect the sense of the scriptures for that day. I have been using these volumes for 3 years now, and have recommended them to sermon study groups and to my brothers and sisters in the ordained ministry since I first opened the first volume. Many thanks to David Bartlett and Barbara Brown Taylor for their excellent editorial work and for making these books available to preachers and students.

This is a helpful resource I use frequently.

I have bought the entire series in both hard-cover and Kindle versions. I love them for good commentaries and resources to help with my sermon development. Some weeks are better than others but I always find them useful. I highly recommend the entire series.
