David A. Teutsch is Professor and Executive Vice President at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College in Wyncote, Pennsylvania.

I am very familiar with this siddur and use it very frequently. I need a more recent edition because my previous printing was falling apart with age.

Very enjoyable and engaging siddur. I also enjoy the readings and the additional prayers. Nice explanations accompany much of the text.

This is the siddur my congregation uses regularly. Love the comments and the selection of readings.

Brand new. Carefully packed. I love it!

This is just what I was looking for, and it arrived in timely fashion and is now in constant use!

This book provides a very clear, attractive Hebrew text, easy-to-follow format for the various observances, and excellent notes and commentary. They provide helpful, non-academic transliterations that accurately sound out the Hebrew for several, not all, the texts. This reflects the practice of Reconstructionist Judaism, so it will differ in some ways from traditional Siddurs. I especially enjoy its selection of psalms and commentaries. A very attractive book and well-worth the price.

I returned this book because the prayers were too modern for me. Someone else might enjoy it, but we didn't. No problem with the return and fast refund.
