Greg McIntyre lives in Shelby, North Carolina (outside of Charlotte, NC) with his wife of 17 years and their 6 children. Greg initially became a lawyer to fight courtroom battles which he did for years. However, after working in an environment where the focus was always on the next billable hour, he started his own practice because he was interested in being more than just a lawyer. Greg was interested in making a difference in his client's lives. Being a husband and a father taught Greg what was really important in life. Greg takes pride in building trust with his clients and feels they share the same values. Greg strives to help others leave a legacy to be preserved and to have a guiding hand in shaping their families' lives. Memberships and Associations. Greg is a veteran of the United State's Navy and a member of the North Carolina State Bar Association. He is a member of ElderCounsel, a national network focused specifically on estate planning & wealth preservation. He serves on the Board of Directors of the Boys & Girls Club, Cleveland County Counsel on Aging, Journey and ACCES. He is a proud member of and Deacon at Shelby Presbyterian Church, where he and his family find fellowship and spiritual refreshment.

Great presentation about how to work through the maze of aging in America.

Very informative

Nobody told me I needed a guidebook on aging. While aging happens slowly, the events that I have been faced with came on rapidly and unexpectedly. I am a senior with elderly parents, and my parents began experiencing serious illnesses - broken hip, kidney failure, dementia, and other lesser but important health problems - and I desperately needed an education - and fast. I always begin by doing research, and I was becoming aware of the need for information on consequences that may occur. In the beginning, dealing with legal issues was of concern, but as time went on, healthcare issues such as home versus institutional healthcare, medicare and insurance, as well as about dementia and how I could provide Mom and Dad with the best care had to be dealt with immediately. Boy was I in for an education about these things as well as asset depletion, Medicaid, and how decisions made could, indeed, "lose the farm". What I didn't know to look for that I found in this book was that even though my parents had all of the standard documents, that wasn't enough to adequately protect themselves, their savings, their home, and their beach property. I also learned about probate, how complicated and expensive it can be, and that with any assets at all, you almost always need an attorney. This book told me I may not have to have an attorney - or even go through probate at all - if things are properly set up. This is the only book I could find that covered all the subjects I needed to know about and several more that came as a surprise. The more I read, the more I realized I hadn't known. I recommend starting your journey through the aging process - yours or your parents' - with this book. You may not even need another, because it will tell you more about things you need to know than any other resource I could find. 5 stars for this very important book.
