Customer Reviews

This is a really neat format, but not a great fit for adoption from foster care. There are several parts that would be usable, but there is quite a bit of space devoted to making the match, what you knew about the kiddo beforehand, the waiting, packing, traveling to meet the child, announcements, showers/parties....stuff that isn't as common with a foster care adoption. There is also a section that says "I think about your birth family often. I know that placing you for adoption must have been a very difficult decision for them." Eh...The journal set up is nice, there are a lot of prompts that I wouldn't have thought to journal about, and I do think it would make a nice keepsake. The vast majority of the book is simple but thoughtful writing prompts with a few lines or a page of space to fill in your answers. There are also some multiple choice questions like "Leaving to bring you home makes me feel" Excited! It's a new adventure. Calm. I'm a seasoned traveler. Nervous. I don't like traveling because _____ Queasy. But it will be worth it! Or a couple lines to fill in your own answer. There are 8 or 10 places for pictures, and some of them seem odd to me, like a picture of the things waiting for you, and a picture of me packing. There is a place for a map of where the child came from, a 'token of my wish for you' (??), travel notice and a couple other things. There is a small envelope for a letter to the child. Overall, I have very mixed feelings about the book. It isn't really suited to our needs--although the author encourages to use all adoptive families to use it and just leave the places that don't apply to you blank. It's creative and could be really special but I would only recommend it to families who are adopting an infant domestically, or adopting an infant or older child internationally.
