PreSchool-Kà “The cover of this brief introduction features an enticing dish piled with fried chicken, collard greens, and coleslaw. The text has a singsong quality: "When I wake up I smell biscuits/and gravy for our grits./I say thanks for smokey ham/cut into little itty bits." While the rhyme scheme is inconsistent, resulting in occasional unevenness, Sanger’s three-dimensional collage images using wood, plastic, fabric, paper, and cross-stitching are wonderful. The board-book format would at first indicate that the audience for this book is infants and toddlers, but the text and the abstract nature of the illustrations make it a better choice for older children. The foods mentioned are listed on the back cover with a short explanation of each item. This offering could be used for curriculum units on food and culture.à “Mary N. AMY WILSON SANGER is the creator of the Tricycle’s best-selling World Snacks series for toddlers. She lives with her family in Woods Hole, Massachusetts.

I love all of Amy Wilson Sanger’s books, and this one is particularly entertaining. I read this one to my daughter, now five months, all the time, and look forward to the day when she starts asking me for hush puppies and collard greens.

Great pictures!

I love these books! The rhyming makes the books flow nicely. My daughter loves that. They are informative and fun. The book is sturdy (board book) so it holds up nicely to a toddler throwing it around.

My family is full of soul food lovers. I grew up on southern specialties & love that my little boy has his own book about collard greens & fried chicken;) This is probably my son's fathers favorite book to read to him. I'll sometimes over hear them in the room discussing the food & my little guy with very few words saying "yum yum". I think that this book would make a nice addition to any little ones library (under two that is).

Colorful, cute and nice rhyming singsong phrasing. The whole food series so far (I have all but the Jewish cuisine, which is on it's way) has been very catchy and memorable.

If you are a foodie and want to share your love of food with you little one these books are perfect. The art is a mix of paper cutouts with found objects and the rhyming story is very cute. You'll be repeating things like "Hola Jalapeno" to your little one with glee! I just wish this author would put out more of this series of books.

The other world snacks books are much better than this one. I'm glad we have it but not our favorite.

i can't write in all caps, but this series of baby books from amy wilson sanger are our absolute favorite. i have all 7, and give them as gifts to lucky friends. so funny, so cute, so creative and a great way to learn about world foods, really. my older daughter likes to read the dessert sections to our baby and we have even experimented with some of the foods. A MUST HAVE FOR KIDS OF ALL AGES! and, sometimes has the 4-for-3 deal so you can get them all.
