Within the American military infrastructure, the jobs are as follows: Navy, includes Marines Army Air Force Coast Guard National Guard, Military Reserve ROTC, Regular Office Training Course, free college education, serve as an officer Civilian Jobs on military bases Civilian Contractors Companies that supply Military equipment, food and technology Ex-Military veterans looking for civilian jobs. Veterans Administration, helping ex-military with medical care, mental health and job search The biggest part of this is probably the suppliers who supply everything from socks to military aircraft. Within the military equipment companies, there are large research departments creating new ways to defend and kill. Some say they are creating weapons to control the weather as in HAARP and space weapons hooked to satellites. Even NASA, the National Aeronautic Space Administration is about developing technology for military use. I created a Crime Superbook that deals with Homeland Security, the CIA, FBI, NSA, etc. I created a Government Superbook that deals with government procurement if you run a business and want a government supply or service contract. There are many jobs in research, science and technology. The internet was created by the U.S. military before they gave it to the people. This book is a central database of websites for all these areas including the world's biggest straight list of military contractors and companies. Veterans Introduction I looked everywhere. I used what I could find on government websites and went elsewhere looking for as many organizations, helplines, websites as I could find about veterans and the military. This is a veterans guide to help veterans get benefits, jobs, medical and mental health help, education for ex-military veterans, social connections and the death and burial benefits. For information about VA medical care or benefits, write, call or visit your nearest VA facility. Your telephone directory will list a VA medical center or regional office under "U.S. Government, Department of Veterans Affairs," or under "U.S. Government, Veterans Administration." You also may contact the offices listed below. Veterans get certain benefits like the Montgomery Bill and they get preferential treatment for some jobs and business contracts with the government. There is the housing program which helps vets get a mortgage to buy a house. There is a funeral benefit that families of veterans receive whereby the veteran can be buried at a national cemetery for free and the family could receive some money as well. There is the death pension which is a payment by the government to the surviving spouse of a vet to raise his or her income to the level of the pension. There are even benefits for surviving children of vets who have either been killed in active duty or who have suffered injuries in active duty that later led to their deaths. dol.gov/dol/vets, veteran's employment & training services.nasdva.com, national assn. of veterans.tvc.state.tx.us
