Worlds Of History, Volume 2: A Comparative Reader, Since 1400
Synopsis
Worlds of History offers a flexible comparative and thematic organization that accommodates a variety of teaching approaches and helps students to make cross-cultural comparisons.
Thoughtfully compiled by a distinguished world historian and community college instructor, each chapter presents a wide array of primary and secondary sources arranged around a major theme—such as universal religions, the environment and technology, or gender and family—across two or more cultures, along with pedagogy that builds students’ capacity to analyze and interpret sources.

Kevin Reilly is a professor of humanities at Raritan Valley College and has taught at Rutgers, Columbia, and Princeton Universities. Cofounder and first president of the World History Association, Reilly has written numerous articles on the teaching of history and has edited works including The Introductory History Course for the American Historical Association. A specialist in immigration history, Reilly incorporated his research in creating the Modern Global Migrations globe at Ellis Island. His work on the history of racism led to the editing of Racism: A Global Reader. He was a Fulbright scholar in Brazil and Jordan and an NEH fellow in Greece, Oxford (UK), and India. Awards include the Community College Humanities Association’s Distinguished Educator of the Year and the World History Association’s Pioneer Award. He has also served the American Historical Association in various capacities, including the governing council. He is currently writing a global history of racism."

Rented for a college level history course - loved the organization and heavy emphasis of category-specific, diverse primary and secondary sources.
