Women's Cinema – The Contested Screen (Short Cuts)

Synopsis

Women's Cinema provides an introduction to critical debates around women's filmmaking and relates those debates to a variety of cinematic practices. Taking her cue from the groundbreaking theories of Claire Johnston, Alison Butler argues that women's cinema is a minor cinema that exists inside other cinemas, inflecting and contesting the codes and systems of the major cinematic traditions from within. Using canonical directors and less established names, ranging from Chantal Akerman to Moufida Tlatli, as examples, Butler argues that women's cinema is unified in spite of its diversity by the ways in which it reworks cinematic conventions.

Customer Reviews

"An invaluable addition to the literature around women's cinema, offering new and valuable material while at the same time clarifying vexed, overly-debated issues once and for all . . . beautifully written."
